The 49'ers

FOUR LONG YEARS AGO, a caravan of some eighty young and hopeful prospectors began their colorful journey forward in the search of treasure, gold. Their journey westward was not a boring one. The days were filled with eventful incidents, many of which they will never forget. During this journey, they discovered the rare richness of life in nature and man. They learned sportsmanship and fair play in their dealings with fellow travelers along the way. They learned to pan out the residue and make use of the good gold left. They now possess many nuggets of gold which they obtained as a result of their hard work. These will enable them to acquire new equipment, higher inspirations, and additional gold nuggets for years long after their momentous four year trek is completed.

Pure Gold — Our Miss Nash

The trails were rough and winding, and the skies were often over-clouded. The climb was steep, and the jutting rocks of life often placed obstacles before us. Many times we faltered and many times we might have given up and gone in search of easier goals, if our constant scout and guide had not urged us onward with her never-tiring patience and zeal. Her zest for life was a constant inspiration for us when the going got rough. We found the gold, but only because her knowledge of the trials and tribulations of the journey and her resourceful ideas for overcoming them kept in us that spark of aspiration and remembrance of our motto—"Ad astra per aspera"—"To the stars through difficulties."

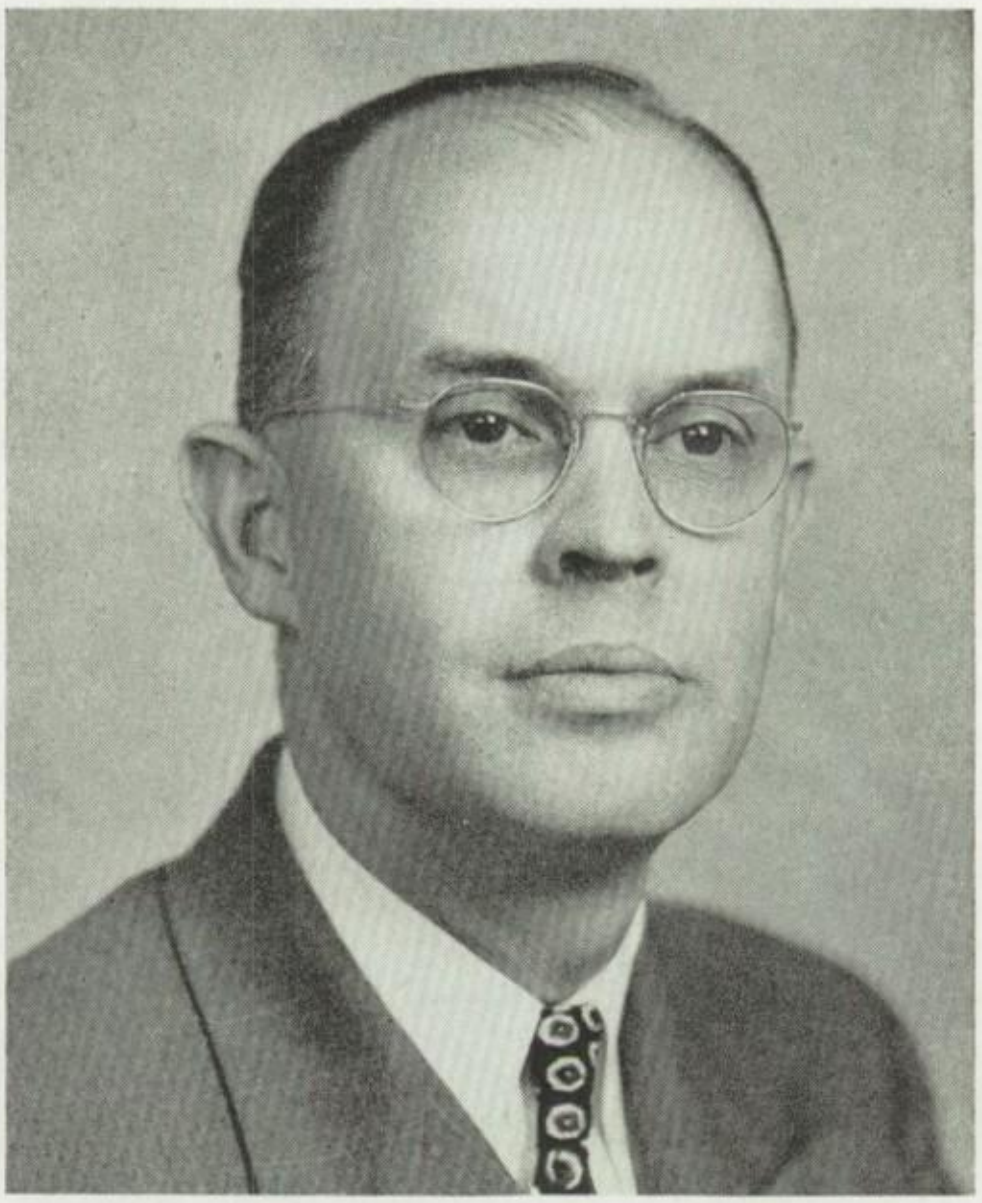
49'ers' Trail Blazer



Through the ages, excitement, thrill, and high adventure have followed men in their search for gold. In America restless and hardy prospectors at Sutter's Mill and Cripple Creek sought the yellow metal an even century ago. Little did they know or realize what a heritage of hope, courage, and dauntless spirit they would bring to the great western part of our country.

Hardships, blasted hopes, and adversity of all kinds were taken without whimpering and no quarter asked. Out of the refining process of rugged living came a new sense of justice, equality, and freedom that was not based upon the gold they dug from the hills, but rather upon the true measure of human greatness, that was and is today fairness, honesty, truthfulness, and neighborly love.

May the members of this class of FORTY NINERS, more than any other before them, dedicate themselves to the task of a true evaluation of the sterling qualities of American manhood and womanhood based not upon material wealth, but upon service to mankind.

The 49'ers' Diary

Modern Man was taking his afternoon snooze out underneath the big cactus. The hot sun beat overhead. He yawned, rolled over, and squinted out over the desert. As he looked, he saw the figure of a man coming over the horizon. Stretching out his legs, he rose and bellowed out his greeting—"Howdy, howdy there, stranger. Come over and chat awhile."

Dragging his pots and picks and jugs, Old-timer ambled up. He dropped his equipment to the ground with a clattering crash as he sputtered, "Stranger! ! Why son, I was here years before you ever heard about this place."

"Well, I guess you're right, but we always refer to anyone we don't know as 'Stranger'."

Old-timer chuckled and replied, "Yes, we used to call you 'Stranger', too, but now you all took over the land and old fellows like me just roam around the desert, taking up lodgings where we may. No hard feelings, though."

Modern Man's interest in the old-fellow began to grow, and he found himself asking questions.

"Say, you must really know a lot about the land around here. How about some stories?"

"I'm not a walking history book, but I do have some recollection of them days when folks first started out this way. They called it the Gold Rush. Them was the good old days. We had our times all right."

Modern Man's curiosity prompted him to go on.

"Nobody else had heard about the gold yet, and I figured I had plenty of time. I got up a party of about eighty and an advance guard of Redskins. Our guards were few in number, but strong in force. They fought bravely that first year in many battles and were seldom defeated.

"That's quite a record in any man's language," replied Modern Man.

"Yes, it was, and we were very grateful to them. The first town we came to was Freshman Valley. We decided to stay awhile before we traveled onward. Many things happened there. One thing I recall was the old fellow that me met on the corner of Cross-Bone Gulch and Dryskull Ridge. That fellow proved so helpful that when we packed up, he went along with us to furnish supplies for us. We traveled for three long months to a nice little spot called Sophomore Ridge. By this time our party numbered seventy-five, and our guards had increased in order to protect us through this totally new country. Their campaign was very successful that year."

"You took a long time looking over the lands and towns on your way, didn't you, Old-timer?"

"Well, son, the way we figured, no one else knew about the gold secret, so we thought we might as well take our time and enjoy the scenery as we went along. Well, to get on with the story, we stayed in Sophomore Ridge for nine months and finally decided to move on. By this time, because of sickness and certain hostile tribes, our party numbered about fifty-five.

We set our sights on Junior Gulch, and arrived there with a great deal of eagerness. But our old restlessness kept us constantly on the go, and it wasn't long before we packed up again to search for our destination, gold. Of course, by this time, the secret was out, and it became quite a race to get there first.

Modern man chuckled and asked, "I'll bet you really were enthusiastic right about that time. Did you find the gold, Old-timer?"

"Now don't get impatient, young feller. Just let me take my time. We had a lot of difficulties to overcome on the way—stray animals, lack of food, hot weather—but we pulled through and at last we struck our gold."

"Well, don't you think it was well worth the effort?"

"Yes, young feller. In those days you worked hard for anything you wanted to accomplish. Too many folks now days just let things slide. I feel sorry for you modern folk, nothing exciting ever happens to you. Well, now that I've rested my bones, I guess I'd better get on my way. Thanks for your company, young feller."

"So-long, Old-timer, thank you for the story."

Modern Man watched Old-timer until his figure disappeared over the horizon, and then he chuckled to himself as he rolled over to finish his nap.

This caravan has now passed their last milestone. Another year of hard work will earn them the treasure. Because they had had no time for entertainment before, they gave a play to enlighten the journey. As a tribute to the Senior caravan they held a dance and banquet in their honor. The help and understanding of old-timers, Mrs. Struke and Miss Graham, have helped them to overcome the obstacles they encountered on the trip.

This advanced group of junior prospectors have completed their preparation for their four year journey yet to come. During these two pre-caravan years, their advisers, Miss Gertrude Addicott and Mr. Harold Z. Maddux, have introduced them to the activities, sports, and curriculum which they will be expected to take part in during their trek toward the treasure, gold.

Class of '54

A long journey, such as this caravan is going to undertake, needs preparation and plans. The class of '54 won't be able to start for another year, but this time will be spent learning how to carry on for the years to follow. As they have their own individual activities, such as basketball and baseball teams, cheerleaders, etc., they will be prepared to step into the tracks of their predecessors. Their able advisers are Mrs. Edna Simcox and Mrs. Electa Adams.

The caravan moved on to conquer other wagon trains in the field of sports. In the winter of "48" and "49" the Warriors had a fairly successful season. They won the Eastern League Championship, which was won for the first time in the history of the caravan. The Warriors also won the New Richmond Invitational Tournament. The Warriors finished the season with a record of 10 wins and 10 losses. The scoring honors were taken by Ron Parian with 191 points, Lawrence Merten with 187 points, and Don Kyle with 184 points. Ron Parian was elected captain of this year's team.

The athletic teams of the caravan found that the cheerleaders were a great help to them. Not only did they build up the morale of the caravan, but by their lusty voices they frightened away all danger of defeat, and cleared the trail for many victories.

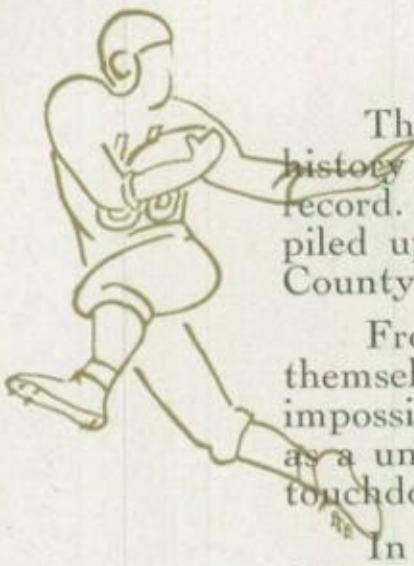
Football



The '49'ers' football team had the most successful season in the school's history as they went through nine encounters and came out with an unblemished record. Using the Missouri "T" formation, Coach Charlie Brown's Redskins piled up 331 points to their opponents' 45, as they captured the Hamilton County Championship.

From the opening play of the season to the final gun the Redskins proved themselves the better team by their outstanding teamwork. It would be impossible to name any boy as the outstanding player because the team worked as a unit at all times and if someone crossed the goal with the ball, it was a touchdown for the team as a whole and not for one player.

In the opening game of the season the Orange and Black eleven defeated Mt. Healthy, one of the two teams that had set back the Redskins in the previous year. The Redskins scored once in the first half and twice in the final stanza, thus beating Mt. Healthy to the tune of 19 to 0.

The second game was with Taylor, the only other team that had beaten the Orange and Black eleven the year before. The Redskins took out their vengeance by trouncing the Yellow Jackets, 34 to 13.

After beating two of the best teams in Hamilton County, the Redskins came up against an underrated Sycamore team which made the over-confident Anderson eleven fight hard to win out in a 19 to 6 decision.

Anderson then traveled to Terrace Park, where they ran roughshod over the Bulldogs to the tune of 50 to 7.

The homecoming game was won in true fashion, as the Anderson football machine rolled over Loveland, 31 to 0.

Once again on the road, Charlie Brown took his boys over to Madeira, where they went to work on the Mustangs to trounce them, 39 to 0.

To make up for the 18 to 18 tie handed to them by Country Day, the Anderson warriors banged out a 59 to 7 victory over the boys from Indian Hill.

On a rainy Friday night the Redskins went over to Colerain for their last game away from home, crushed any hope any Colerain boy had of stopping the Orange and Black, and cinched the county title by downing Colerain, 27 to 6.

To prove that the Hamilton County teams weren't just pushovers, the Redskins played a Millcreek Valley team, St. Bernard by name, and although the score was 6 to 6 at the half, the Orange and Black eleven scored 47 points in the last 24 minutes to defeat St. Bernard, 53 to 6 and end the season in the best form.

Of course, no team would be complete without cheerleaders, and no one can say Anderson was lacking spirit and cheers, directed by an able varsity cheerleading squad.

Baseball

The Caravan's 1949 edition of a baseball team was a great improvement over last year's team. The '49'ers' team was composed entirely of veterans from the previous year's battles. The 11 to 2 victory over Loveland in the opening game was an excellent indication of the successes to come.

Track

The '49'ers' track team enjoyed considerable success and maintained their position as one of the most outstanding caravan teams from the Southwestern District. The crowning event was a victory in the Greenhills Night Relays, in which the surefooted Warriors tied up a resounding 68 to 34 decision over Class A Norwood, and a third place ranking in the district meet. The '49'ers struck pay dirt and added eight trophies to their trophy case.

The top-star scouts in these performances were Robert Moore, John Burns, hurdles—John Steele, 100-, 220-, 440-yard dashes and broad jump—Vernon Hawkins, mile run and Arthur White in the half-mile run.

Five caravan members placed high enough in the district meets to enable them to go to the State meet at Columbus, Ohio. Again the star performers, Moore, Steele, Hawkins, and White, proved their ability and brought glory to their caravan.

Hi-Y

The fellows of the caravan made their trip more enjoyable by forming a Hi-Y Club. Following the standards of the Hi-Y, they enjoyed many evenings of good fellowship. Various programs were set up and entertainment in the form of movies and talks on interesting subjects made the year a most helpful one.

The junior members of the caravan formed their own club, but participated in most of the Alpha Club's activities.

Glee Club

To lend a more festive air to the traveling of the caravan, some of the musical members banded together to form a Glee Club. They entertained the other members of the caravan by singing for important occasions during the year, at Christmas, at the annual Spring Concert and at Easter.

They chose as their leader Mrs. Carolyn Truitt, a new member of the caravan.

Band

The musically inclined members of all four wagon trains combined their talents and furnished all the music on the long trip Westward. They followed their Redskins to every battlefield and spurred them on to victory. They are known as the first marching band in Anderson history. The band also played for some of the basketball games, as well as for many of the assemblies and P.T.A. meetings during the trip. The caravan stopped early in December for the Orange and Black Minstrels, and the band took their part in them. Again they furnished the music for the Christmas celebration. The band had played for nearly everything, and now they wanted to have their own program. One evening in May, when the caravan stopped for the night, the musicians gave a big concert. It wasn't long after this that the destination of the caravan was reached. The strains of Pomp and Circumstance could be heard as the band honored the victorious '49'ers.

Student Council

Our scouts and most able prospectors formed a council for the purpose of promoting more student interest in the activities and citizenship of the school. They were successful in all their projects, especially the Good Posture Campaign Contest, the management of the Homecoming Football game, and the Talent Show. They brought about a better spirit of organization and co-operation among students through new rules and regulations which bettered the morale of our whole school.
